Lloyd White Wins Recount In Muhlenberg

Write-In Candidate Reid Picks Up 14 Votes, Falls 4 Short

Write-in candidate Lawrence Reid picked up 14 additional votes in the Muhlenberg Township recount made Tuesday afternoon, but still fell short of victory in his bid for the township clerk's job.

The recount, made by the Pickaway County Board of Elections, showed 72 votes for Reid and 76 for Lloyd White. In the original count of the Nov. 8 ballots, Reid was awarded 58 votes and White 76.

Reid won 50 votes, eight more than in the original count, in the Muhlenberg precinct. In the Darbyville Corporation, he picked up six additional ballots, or 22 votes. White's totals were the same in both precincts.

In recounts made Monday, write-in candidate Richard Bozman picked up enough additional ballots to upset Harry L. Margulis in the Ashville mayor race. In the first count, Margulis was winner 242-212, but in the recount, Bozman came out on top, 254-236.

A recount made of ballots in Circleville's precinct, 3-B, gave both incumbent third ward councilman George Crites, and candidate Harry Grant, one more vote.

Thus Crites won reelection by a two-vote margin, 171-169.

Strawser Named Outstanding Star

Also Selected Honorary Captain At Annual Football Banquet

Don Strawser, Circleville High School senior, was awarded two honors at the annual football banquet Tuesday night when he was named: (1) winner of the outstanding player trophy and (2) honorary captain of the team.

Strawser, 6', 188-pound guard, also played linebacker and called defensive signals. When his name was announced by Ward Skinner, president of the Circleville Boosters Club which sponsored the event in the First EUB Church Service Center, it took a second or two before the crowd of approximately 300 realized it.

The three-hour long program began with the invocation by the Rev. Carl Zehner, minister of Trinity Lutheran Church. Skinner welcomed the crowd and then presented the floral center piece to the mother of George, Gary and Ray Phifer as the "mom with the most boys on the football team."

Ray Friend took over as toastmaster. He introduced George Hartman, superintendent of city schools, J. Wray Henry, principal of CHS, his own wife and the wives of the coaches whom he said "suffered the most during the season." Friend also lauded the efforts of the Booster Club in backing the team.

Ironton Legion Loses On Appeal

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio American Legion headquarters today announced the Frank J. Goldcamp Post No. 59 of Ironton has lost its appeal to retain its charter.

Revocation of the Ironton charter and seizure of the post's assets were ordered last July by the legion's state executive committee after an adverse decision on the matter by the only trial board ever convened in Ohio Legion history. The board found the post guilty of having "social" members, creating unauthorized financial obligations, and failing to comply with its own constitution and bylaws. The post has 300 members.

One American Book Popular In Germany

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Bow (D-Ohio), just back from a tour of 21 foreign countries for the House Appropriations Committee, says he was extremely interested in the reading tastes of Germans from both East and West Germany at a U. S. exhibit in a West Berlin trade fair.

"There was always a lineup of Germans to read one American book," he said.

The book? "A Sears Roebuck catalogue," Bow replied.

Merchants Set Schedule For Yule Shopping

Chamber Announces Stores Will Be Open All Day Wednesdays

Circleville's retail merchants have adopted uniform shopping hours to make the Christmas buying job easier for the customers.

Details of the Yuletide schedule were given in a special bulletin issued by Lewis E. Cook, secretary of Circleville Chamber of Commerce. The bulletin explained:

"Retail merchants seeking greater shopping convenience for their customers during the Christmas season have adopted the following program of store hours, and solicit your earnest cooperation in helping to make Circleville a bigger and better shopping center."

UNDER the plan, already in effect, retail stores will plan to be open:

Every Wednesday all day.

Every Friday and Saturday night.

During the week before Christmas, open every night.

Closing on Christmas Eve at 6 p. m.

Regular store hours will be resumed on January 1.

The Yuletide lights, trimmed over the downtown streets, are scheduled to be turned on next Friday.

30,000 U.S. GIs Still Guard Korea

WESTERN FRONT, Korea (AP)—More than 30,000 American soldiers will observe Thanksgiving camped in the bleak hills of Korea guarding the 2½-year-old armistice.

The 24th and 7th Infantry divisions, grouped just south of the armistice zone, are provided nearly one pound of turkey for each man, with trimmings including shrimp cocktail and oyster dressing.

Most of the troops, just back from strenuous field maneuvers will eat in their own mess halls. But dinner will be taken to a few on duty in bunkers and outposts overlooking the demilitarized zone and Communist North Korea.

OMAHA (AP)—A little black and white mongrel dog sits glumly beside a "no dumping" sign where somebody dumped her.

Named "Dumpy" by residents of the area, the friendly little tail-wagger seems determined to hold her ground, apparently believing whoever left her is going to come back for her.

She has waited four days.

Idle Claims Up

COLUMBUS (AP)—New claims for Ohio unemployment compensation numbered 6,898 for the week ended Nov. 19, compared with 6,494 the previous week, the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation reported today.

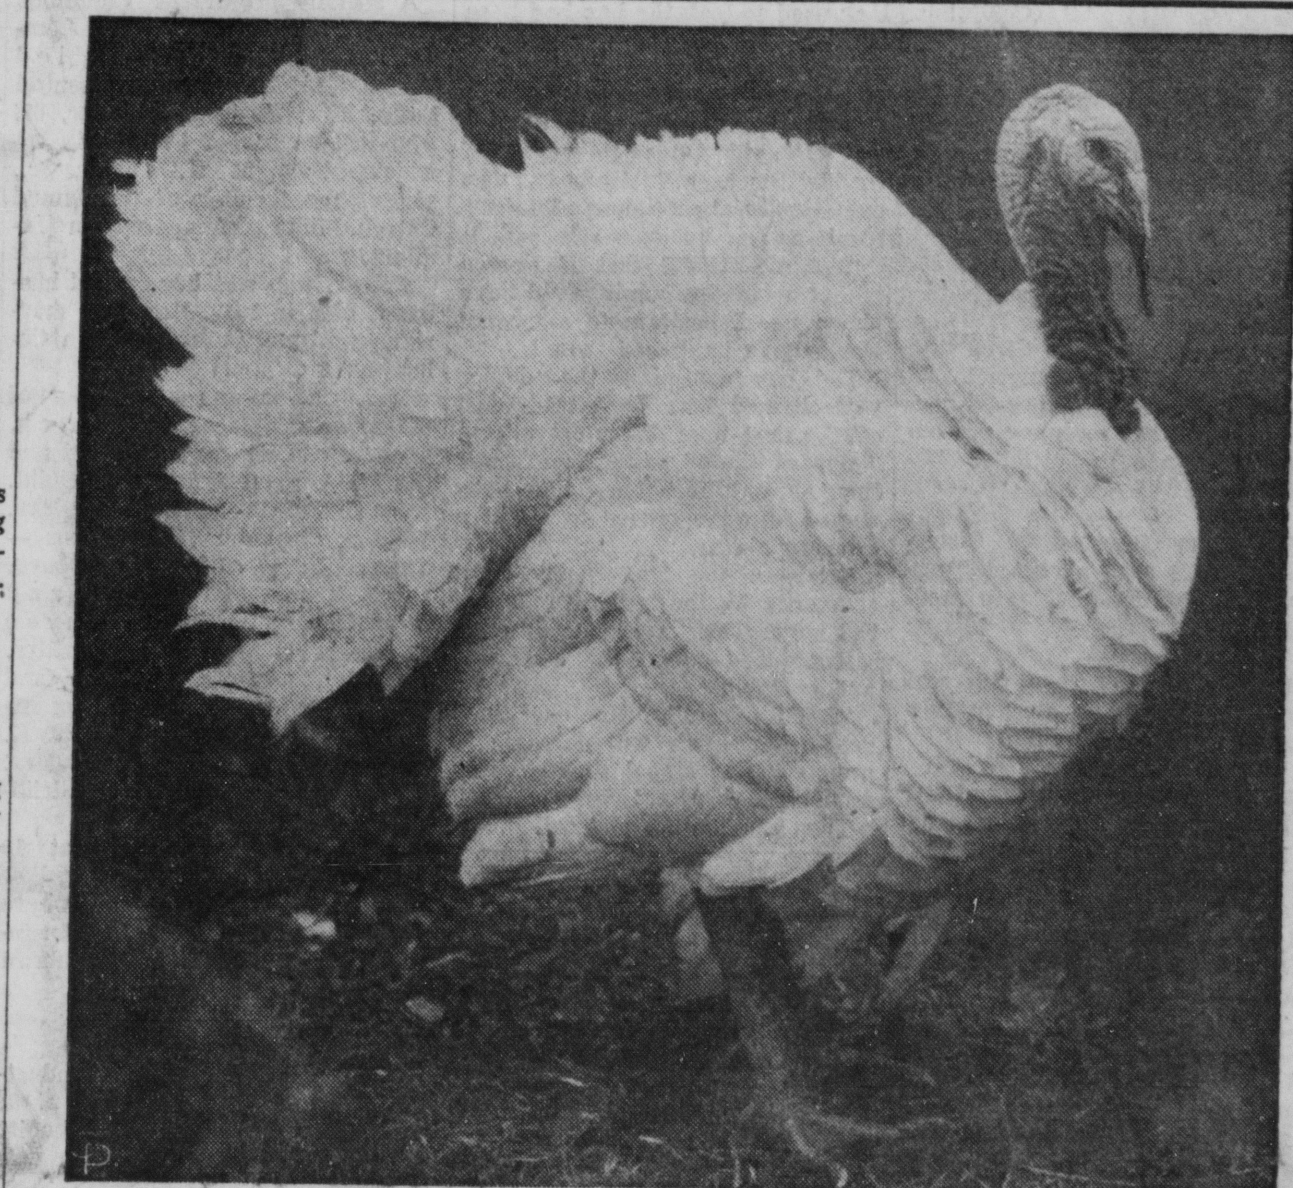

BOSTON (AP)—Should 4-year-old Hildy McCoy, born a Roman Catholic, be taken from her foster parents because they are Jewish?

That question was raised in the Massachusetts Supreme Court today as Mr. and Mrs. Melvin B. Ellis of Brookline began a new effort to keep Hildy.

For nearly five months the Ellises have been in hiding to avoid complying with a court order to surrender the child. Whether they would appear in court and risk arrest remained problematical until the last moment.

A week ago a New York reporter quoted Ellis as saying: "There's fear hanging over us all the time. We feel hunted and haunted."

Secret Data On Passports Ruled Illegal

WASHINGTON (AP)—U. S. Dist. Judge Luther W. Youngdahl has ruled out use by the State Department of confidential information in passing upon passport applications.

Decisions of the department's passport office "must be substantiated by evidence contained in the record," Youngdahl said yesterday in the most far-reaching opinion on the subject so far from any federal court.

Youngdahl ruled in a suit brought by Leonard B. Boudin, New York attorney, who was advised that he was ineligible "for further passport facilities" under Passport Regulation 51.1359. This regulation, among other things, rules out passports for:

"Persons who are members of the Communist party or who have recently terminated such membership under circumstances as to warrant the conclusion.

Boudin once signed an affidavit saying he was not a member of the party or a person who had recently terminated membership.

Youngdahl ordered the State Department to give Boudin a hearing within 20 days. If it takes place, it will be the first quasi-judicial passport hearing ever conducted under court order.

Church Services Will Underline True Meaning Of Thanksgiving

Circleville and the rest of Pickaway County looked forward today to a quiet and relaxed Thanksgiving Day.

For the most part, it will be a holiday for all except businesses catering to motorists, and for the public emergency branches maintaining 24-hour duty. Religious services planned by many congregations, beginning Wednesday night, will serve to remind the public of the season's deeper meaning.

The Herald, participating in the holiday, will not be published Thursday.

Among the first of the special Thanksgiving services will be those held in Trinity Lutheran Church here at 8 o'clock tonight. Pastor Carl G. Zehner will present the sermon, "Symbols of Thanksgiving", taken from Colossians, 3:15-17.

Food, collected at these services, will be used in Thanksgiving baskets for needy families.

UNITED Thanksgiving services, sponsored by the Pickaway Ministers Association, will be held in Circleville at 9 a. m. Thursday in the Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. John Hurst, of the Church of the Brethren, will present the sermon "Living By Our Traditions". His text is from Paul's Second Letter to the Thessalonians, Chapter 2, Verse 15.

The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Clark Will, will present the anthem, "Congregational singing will consist of the following hymns: 'Come Ye Thankful People Come', 'Blessed Master I Have Promised' and 'Now Thank We All Our God'."

The Rev. Donald E. Mitchell will preside at the service. The public is invited to attend.

At St. Joseph's Church, Mass on Thanksgiving Day will be at 8 a. m.

New Commerce Aide Selected

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has accepted the resignation of Lathair Tector as assistant secretary of commerce and has named Frederick H. Mueller, Grand Rapids, Mich., his successor.

The Gettysburg White House announced Tector's resignation and Mueller's appointment last night. Mueller heads a family-owned furniture manufacturing firm.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks said last month that Tector, former head of Perfect Circle Corp., piston ring manufacturers, intended to leave government Nov. 30. He has been a target of attack by the CIO for more than a year.

The new record, as reported today by the Edison Electric Institute, was 11,148,000,000 kilowatt-hours, almost 20 per cent more than output in 1954.

Benson Seeks Help To Solve Hard Problem

Any Plan To Get Look Except Renewal Of Old Rigid Price Program

CLEVELAND (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson appealed to the public today for ideas on how to help solve farm problems of overproduction, surpluses and declining grower prices and income.

These problems appear likely to become major issues in next year's presidential election.

In a speech for the annual convention of the National Grange, Benson promised that every letter will receive a personal reply and every suggestion will be considered except one—the suggestion that the government return to high, rigid price supports.

Some critics of the Eisenhower administration farm program urge restoration of the old support program.

Benson conceded, however, that flexible price supports, a feature of the administration program, "are not and never will be enough" to boost farm prices in the face of present surpluses. He said nevertheless that such supports can be helpful and should be used.

In Washington yesterday, Benson told newsmen that the government's 18-member National Agricultural Advisory Commission is working on proposals that the administration sponsor a "soil bank" plan under which farmers would get government payments for taking a part of the land out of production and building fertility on it for the future. This program would retain flexible supports.

IN AN OBVIOUS thrust at his political critics, the secretary said in his speech no farm program "should ever be manipulated to serve partisan political purposes. Agriculture is too vital to be used in such fashion."

"I have faith," he said, "in the wisdom of our farm people. They are not easily stampeded by demagogues. The farm vote cannot be bought with unsound programs or the promised abandonment of programs that are sound."

Benson reported that the Eisenhower administration has made

This, of course, is a highly imaginative Droodle. You may have thought it was "dopey" but the correct term is "highly imaginative." Keep that in mind. I like it, though, because it gives me an excuse to publicize Marbles as a wonderful, sportsmanlike pastime for youngsters. It's too bad grown-ups don't play it (or them?). If Marbles achieved international popularity we might even be able to settle differences with other nations by having Marble Tournaments instead of waging destructive wars and signing useless peace treaties. But then, sooner or later, some crazy Dictator would start building Hydrogen Marbles and ruin everything. I guess our present system of blowing each other to smithereens is the best one after all.

Ex-Football Star Named To NLRB Position

WASHINGTON (AP)—One Thanksgiving Day more than 40 years ago a young Brown University football player stood fast while the great Jim Thorpe of the Carlisle Indians came thundering on.

"He'd bear down on you like a hurricane," says Steven Bean, "and you'd shut your eyes, take a dive and hope for the best."

This is the same Stephen Sibley Bean, now 63-year-old attorney, whom President Eisenhower has just appointed to be one of the five members of the National Labor Relations Board.

Those days at Brown, "where they probably remember me better as a football player than as a student," are gone for Bean.

Now his days are occupied trying to unravel complex cases involving the Taft-Hartley federal labor law. Eisenhower reached down among the NLRB's trial examiners, who conduct hearings and make preliminary findings before cases reach the full NLRB, to pick Bean to be a board member.

Bean's half dozen years as a trial examiner in both the Truman and Eisenhower administrations gave him a liberal education in the ins and outs of the complicated T-H law. He conducted hearings in more than 60 cases, had few reversals by the NLRB itself or in the courts.

Before coming to the NLRB in 1950, Bean had served in both world wars and had been an insurance company lawyer.

Should Child Born To Roman Catholic Be Taken From Jew Foster Parents?

That question was raised in the Massachusetts Supreme Court today as Mr. and Mrs. Melvin B. Ellis of Brookline began a new effort to keep Hildy.

A week ago a New York reporter quoted Ellis as saying: "There's fear hanging over us all the time. We feel hunted and haunted."

Today's action before Justice John V. Spalding was based on a petition by the Ellises for a high court review of proceedings in Norfolk County Probate Court, where the Ellises last June were ordered to surrender Hildy to the Roman Catholic Charitable Bureau here.

At the heart of the matter is the Massachusetts adoption law which required that, "where practicable," a probate judge must give a child in adoption only to foster parents of the same religious faith.

The law says that for this purpose the child's religion is presumed to be that of its parents. If they have different faiths, then the mother's religion governs.

The Hildy story goes back many months.

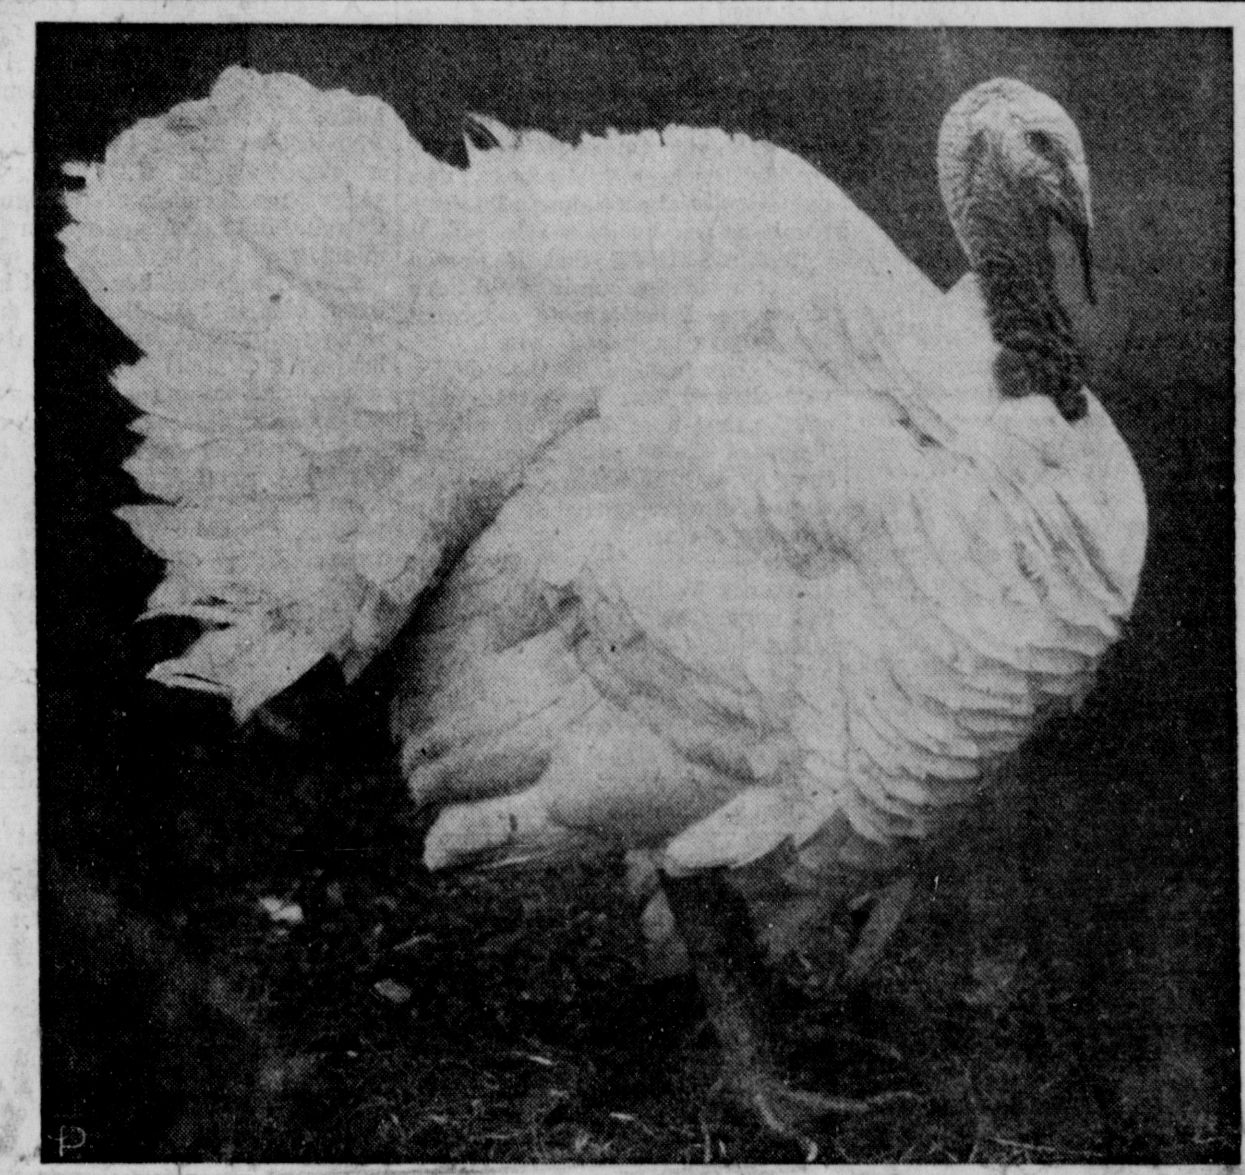

It begins Feb. 23, 1952, when Hildy was born out of wedlock in a Boston hospital. Her mother was Marjorie McCoy, now Mrs. Doherty of Hingham.

The day the mother was discharged from the hospital—March 5—she signed and adoption petition. Her story is that she did not know the identity of the adopting couple. The Ellises say she did.

In any case, Hildy went to live with the Ellises when she was 10 days old. She has lived with them ever since.

Mrs. Doherty says she learned for the first time in March 1951 that her child had gone not to a Roman Catholic home, but to the Jewish home of the Ellises. She moved to revoke the adoption.

In September, 1953, (Hildy was

Coach Steve Brudzinski went back over the season game by game, giving statistics and comments on each one:

Athens—"A sound game". CHS won 15-0.

Linden McKinley—"Slow start, good defense." CHS lost 13-7 while holding the winners to 12 yards in the second half.

Wilmington—"We did everything wrong but still won." CHS won 14-6.

Hillsboro—"We did everything right." CHS won 41-0.

St. Charles—"We reached our peak and played our best game." CHS broke a five-year jinx to win 33-20.

Rosary—"First half OK, second half no good." CHS won 34-19.

Greenfield—"We were lucky to win." CHS won 14-13 in a thriller.

Delaware—"We were going down." CHS lost 30-26.

Washington C. H.—"We hit the bottom and didn't do anything right." CHS lost the SCOL title 12-6.

BRUDZINSKI likened the WCH contest to the OSU-Michigan game. He said the coaches here could not figure out what happened to CHS, just as coaches can't figure out what happened to Michigan.

"We spent more time on scouting reports this year than in the last seven or eight years," he said. "We tried to give the boys every piece of information possible about the opponents, including the band and cheerleaders it seemed."

Brudzinski said that there were good prospects coming up in the next two to three years. He noted that CHS will have two good passers in Banks and Hosler—"you can expect to see more throwing."

He concluded by thanking the Booster Club for backing the team and taking the boys to the OSU-Illinois game in Columbus.

Red Courtney made brief remarks about the basketball prospects.

SKINNER, in announcing the winner of the trophy to Strawser, explained how a "secret committee" chose the winner. The official result was given to Skinner in a sealed envelope.

There was no winner in 1954. Other winners include: James Carter, 1946; Red Crawford, 1947; Sandy Hill, 1948 and 1949; John Valentine, 1950; Bill Gillis, 1951; Fred Davis, 1952; and Don Skinner and George Troutman, 1953.

Bomb Placed In Iowa Coed Dormitory

Police Mystified By Act Threatening Lives Of 136 Girls

AMES, Iowa (P)—State and city officials followed a cold trail today in their efforts to track down the person who planted a dynamite bomb in a coeds' dormitory at Iowa State College here.

They were equally mystified as to why he did it.

The intricate device, containing five sticks of dynamite, and timing equipment to explode it, was found about 2:20 a. m. Monday in Elm Hall, a residence housing 136 girls. Police disclosed the attempted bombing yesterday.

The dormitory janitor, Arthur Larson, averted possible disaster by prying open a box in which the device was concealed and ripping out the electrical wiring.

Police discovered that the wiring, a dime-store mousetrap set as a trigger mechanism and a padlock used to lock the box had been purchased at three different stores in Ames but they had no clues as to the identity of the purchaser.

"This wasn't just a college prank," said Ames Police Chief Orville Erickson. "Anybody who puts five sticks of dynamite in a bomb means business. He added: 'WE BELIEVE that if Larson hadn't acted the bomb would have blown up. I hesitate to say what would have happened then.'

The box containing the device was chained to a ballustrade just off the first floor of the dormitory. One of the strange facts was that an old auto horn had been rigged into the device to sound a warning alarm.

Coeds on the first floor were awakened by the buzzing sound of the horn. They went out into the hallway and found the box with a note saying:

"Read carefully. No one need get hurt. Device will detonate 20 minutes after signal sounds or on movement of box."

Then the janitor was called.

Ike To Observe Thanksgiving With Family At Farm Home

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (P)—The storms and cares of office take a little recess today in that big white country place on the rim of Gettysburg battlefield.

President Eisenhower has some work to do. But at the same time his three lively grandchildren are coming with their parents, Maj. and Mrs. John S. Eisenhower. And it's Thanksgiving Eve, with a family holiday in prospect.

The farm problem which bothers the Republicans cropped up again yesterday, in the wake of Cabinet and National Security Council meetings 22 miles away in a mountain lodge at Camp David.

Eisenhower, through his press secretary, made it plain he's still standing behind Secretary of Agriculture Benson, just as he was 25 days ago when he issued a declaration of support from his Denver hospital room.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty didn't say in so many words that administration farm policy might not change in the future, or that Benson was assured of continued support, but there was no backing down from the Oct. 29 expression of complete confidence.

HAGERTY DID say that Eisenhower "is the only one who appoints or removes a Cabinet official," and at no time has he "entertained any suggestion whatsoever of the secretary of agriculture being replaced."

Official business increasingly claimed the chief executive's time.

Eisenhower's chief assistant Sherman Adams was due in with a briefcase full of business today. Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, chief heart specialist at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, was expected too for the President's weekly checkup.

Hagerty flatly denied a published report that the President's brother, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, intervened to save Benson's job.

Denying Benson ever has offered to resign, although many Democrats and some influential Republicans are after his scalp in the controversy over farm price drops, Hagerty told a news conference with pointed emphasis:

"Will you also quote this? That you fellows are trying to make a case where no case exists, as far as the President is concerned; and he is the only one who appoints or removes a Cabinet official, and no one else."

The questioning stemmed from a New York Herald Tribune story reporting that Milton Eisenhower, the President's youngest brother and a constant adviser, blocked demands for Benson's ouster.

KENTON (P)—A search was on today for three men who robbed the First National Bank of nearby Forest of $10,000 yesterday after clubbing a bank official and locking up other employees and six customers in a vault.

progress in solving farm problems. He cited disposal of $4 billion worth of surpluses since mid-1953.

He said this was nearly twice as much as the Truman administration had gotten rid of in the two years before the Korean War when it had big surpluses.

He stressed, however, that there are difficulties in the way of moving surpluses into use. He cited legislation and government policies designed to prevent disposal operations that would break farm markets at home and abroad.

Despite present financial difficulties, Benson said that agriculture has a bright future:

"As farmers and farm leaders, our challenge is to keep America strong—strong socially, economically, and above all, spiritually strong. America must be spiritually sound if our free way of life, our free pattern of agriculture, is to endure. There is no other way," he said.

head, when told the safe could not be opened due to a time lock.

The gunmen herded bank workers and six customers into an open vault and tried to lock the three doors, McElroy said. Businessmen from nearby stores opened the doors and freed them after the robbers fled.

The bank officials said about $10,000 was taken from bank counters. He said the thieves overlooked other money, in coins, stored in the vault.

The men entered the bank just before closing and are believed to have fled south in a car reported stolen earlier in the day in Mansfield.

A lone gunman held up the bank in August, 1954, but was later captured.

Don Strawser Wins 2 Honors At Grid Banquet

Sophomores
Bob Taylor, Bill Johnson and Fred Sines.

(ALL SENIORS except Martin, juniors Banks and Tomlinson and sophomores Taylor, Johnson, Sines, Hosler and Gary Phifer are lettermen.)

Coach Steve Brudzinski went back over the season game by game, giving statistics and comments on each one:

Athens—"A sound game," CHS won 12-0.

Linden McKinley—"Slow start, good defense," CHS lost 13-7 while holding the winners to 12 yards in the second half.

Wilmington—"We did everything wrong but still won," CHS won 14-6.

Washboro—"We did everything right," CHS won 41-0.

St. Charles—"We reached our peak and played our best game," CHS broke a five-year jinx to win 33-20.

Rosary—"First half OK, second half no good," CHS won 34-19.

Greenfield—"We were lucky to win," CHS won 14-13 in a thriller.

Delaware—"We were going down," CHS lost 30-26.

Washington C. H.—"We hit the bottom and didn't do anything right," CHS lost the SCOL title 12-6.

BRUDZINSKI likened the WCH contest to the OSU-Michigan game. He said the coaches here could not figure out what happened to CHS, just as coaches can't figure out what happened to Michigan.

"We spent more time on scouting reports this year than in the last seven or eight years," he said. "We tried to give the boys every piece of information possible about the opponents, including the band and cheerleaders it seemed."

Brudzinski said that there were good prospects coming up in the next two to three years. He noted that CHS will have two good passers in Banks and Hosler—"you can expect to see more throwing."

He concluded by thanking the Booster Club for backing the team and taking the boys to the OSU-Illinois game in Columbus.

Red Courtney made brief remarks about the basketball prospects.

SKINNER, in announcing the winner of the trophy to Strawser, explained how a "secret committee" chose the winner. The official result was given to Skinner in a sealed envelope.

There was no winner in 1954. Other winners included: James Carter, 1946; Red Crawford, 1947; Sandy Hill, 1948 and 1949; John Valentine, 1950; Bill Gillis, 1951; Fred Davis, 1952; and Don Skinner and George Troutman, 1953.

'Pretty Rugged' Winter Predicted

WASHINGTON C. H. — "It's going to be pretty rugged weather, maybe until February, according to the little animals," said the Paint Valley Prophet here.

Pressed for further information as to what the "little animals" were doing to forecast severe weather during the next two or three months, he said the muskrats have stopped up all unnecessary entrances to their dens in stream banks and that turtles are buried deep in the mud or far back in openings in the stream banks.

"That's a sure sign of rugged weather," Paint Valley Prophet reiterated.

Presbyterians Hold Reception For Members

A Thanksgiving musical reception for new members was held recently in the Presbyterian Church.

The musical program presented was as follows: soprano solo, "Prayer of a Norwegian Child," by Miss Donna Mitchell; flute solos, "Sicilian," from Sonata No. 5 by Handel, "Andante," from the first Concerto by Molique, and "Allegretto," by Godard, presented by Miss Joyce Troutman of Groveport, who is a student at Capital University in Columbus and organ solos of Thanksgiving, "Now Thank We All Our God," by Bach, and "Deo Gratias," by Fry-singer, were presented by Mrs. Theodore Huston.

The choir, under the direction of Mrs. Clark Will, sang the anthem "The Earth is the Lord's," from Stoughton, with a baritone solo by James Carr.

Following the musical, members of the congregation were guests of the session at a reception in the social rooms, honoring the new members received into the church during the past year.

Furnishing background music during the social hour were the following young people of the church: Ellen Young, Phyllis McCoard, Ann Adkins, Donna Mitchell and Miss Joyce Troutman, guest soloist.

Chairmen of the committee for the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McCoard, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Houghton and Mr. and Mrs. Hal Spencer.

Hollywood Men Use Makeup Too

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—A facial makeup consultant to many movie stars says she does a brisk business in cosmetics for men.

"It's not what you think," said French-born Aida Grey. "These are virile men, some of them husbands of famous movie stars. Others are stars themselves."

"I noticed that some of my feminine customers kept coming back too soon for refills, so I asked why. Without exception, the girls answered: 'My husband uses it too.'"

7 Recounts Due In Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP)—Hamilton County's Board of Elections is knee deep in recounts.

Seven petitions to recount votes cast in the Nov. 8 election had been filed when the deadline for such requests was reached yesterday.

Top one is the request for a recount of all votes cast in the Cincinnati city councilman election.

Edward G. Robinson Jr. Says Bottle Failed To Solve Problem

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—At 22, darkly handsome Edward G. Robinson Jr. has had more than his share of trouble. But now he thinks he has his life on an even keel.

"It was all part of growing up," he says. "I was confused. I was despondent over my marriage."

"I turned to drink as a panacea for all my problems. But that was no solution. When I woke up in the morning, I had a headache, and my problems were still there."

Drinking added to his problems. He was arrested on drunk charges. He also was charged with passing bad checks and holding up a taxi driver.

"I was acquitted on those matters," he said. "My big problem was drinking. I was miserable over my marriage."

"We tried to make it work. We went back together many times. I didn't want my daughter to be raised in a broken home. But it was worse for her to be living with parents who were always fighting. I'm afraid we would have destroyed each other if we had stayed married."

That has been filed by Albert C. Jordan, an independent candidate.

Young Robinson said he has recovered from the hurt of the broken marriage and has conquered his drinking problem.

"I couldn't handle it," he admitted. "Now I just have a little wine before dinner or a beer now and then if I feel like it."

The greatest boost for his morale has been the improvement in his acting career. He owes it to Minna Wallis, an agent who managed Van Johnson's career, among others. She's the sister of producer Hal Wallis.

Eddie had gone to school with the producer's son. Mrs. Wallis formerly comedienne Louise Fazenda, interested her sister-in-law in Eddie's problems. Minna took him under her wing, quickly got him roles in two Climax TV shows and in a war film, "The Screaming Eagles."

Bearing a famous name is both an asset and a liability, Eddie said. "It helps get you in to see producers," he explained, "but then you have to live up to somebody else's reputation."

"I thought about changing my name, but I gave that up. It's a perfectly good name, and I would be fooling anyone if I did change it."

Young Church People To Hold State Youth Rally In Columbus

Four thousand young church people of all Protestant denominations will gather in Columbus Friday, Saturday and Sunday for the second quadrennial State Youth Rally sponsored by the Ohio Council of Churches.

Coming from all parts of the state, they will spend three days in plenary sessions and denominational groups hearing addresses, discussing the future of the ecumenical youth movement in Ohio and in fellowship hours. Registrations pouring into the Ohio Council's office in Columbus indicate that the new Franklin County Veteran's Memorial Auditorium, where the rally will be held, will be filled to overflowing. Young people will register by denominations, beginning at 9:30 a. m., Friday in the Deshler-Hilton Hotel. All should be registered before the opening ecumenical service in the auditorium at 7:45 p. m.

INSPIRATIONAL hymns will be sung by the young people to open the rally with Charles E. King, once conductor of the Wings Over Jordan Choir, as leader. Feature of the evening will be an address by Charles A. Wells, Chicago journalist and lecturer. National and state denominational youth leaders and officers of the Ohio Christian Youth Movement will be introduced.

On Saturday morning the second ecumenical service will be held followed by group sessions of 500 young people each. Later there will be still smaller group discussions on the rally theme, "We Are Not Alone."

In the afternoon of Saturday, the young people will go to various churches of the city for meetings by denominations under the leadership of state youth directors.

On Saturday evening the third ecumenical service will feature singing by the Ohio State University Symphonic Choir and interpretation of theme by the university's rhythmic choir.

Prof. Louis H. Diercks of the university's music faculty is director of the choir, which received standing ovations on its recent tour of Europe, and Prof. Helen Alkire is the rhythmic group's director. A social hour will follow.

On Sunday morning the fourth and closing ecumenical service will feature a sermon by the Rev. Mrs. James D. Wyker, national president of United Church Women, a Disciples of Christ minister from Mount Vernon, Ohio. An offering will be taken in aid of the Wilgespruit Fellowship Center in South Africa.

WILLIAM BARGER of Zanesville, an officer of the Ohio Christian Youth Movement, youth agency of the Ohio Council of Churches, will be rally chairman. In preparation for the rally, young people of all denominations are engaged in a Bible-reading project during November. Daily Bible readings have been assigned through church youth groups based on the rally's subsidiary themes, "Divine resources flow through us" and "Human fellowship sustains us."

3 Columbus Men Held In Dope Raid

COLUMBUS (AP) — The city vice squad says out-of-town police officers were called in to Columbus to make narcotic purchases in an effort to smash a narcotics ring. Lt. Alfred Lashley, vice squad chief, said three Columbus men have been arrested and are being held, pending filing of charges today, for investigation of possession and sale of narcotics.

Hunt For Lost Shin Abandoned

BOSTON (AP) — The Coast Guard gave up active searching today for the missing 3,300-ton Liberian freighter Daytona carrying 24 men, mostly West Indians.

The Daytona, en route from Nova Scotia to Philadelphia, radioed early Sunday that she was in distress 75 miles east of Gloucester. She was caught in a storm with winds of 75 mph.

Sales In October Of Savings Bonds Show Drop Here

Sales of Series E and H savings bonds in Pickaway County for October totaled $40,862, a decrease of $24,167 over the same month last year.

The county has now achieved 97.8 percent of its 1955 goal, according to Judge William D. Radcliff, chairman of the county savings bond committee. Throughout the state, 17 counties have already exceeded their 1955 sales goals.

Bond sales in Ohio for October passed the $30 million mark for the highest October sales since 1945. Despite the county's drop over last year for October, the state recorded a 15.8 percent increase.

Total sales in the state for the 10-month period of January to October amounts to slightly less than $306 million. This represents a gain of $32 million over the same 10-month period in 1954.

Tax Stamp 'Loss' Near $10 Million

COLUMBUS (AP) — It cost $9,699,000 to print Ohio's prepaid tax stamps and pay vendors' commissions and redemptions in fiscal 1954-55, a legislative committee studying sales tax problems says.

Charles W. Ingler, on the Legislative Service Commission staff, said $3,919,000 of the amount went for redemption payments on cancelled stamps to individuals and organizations.

'Underground' Run By Reds Told At Trial

CLEVELAND (AP) — Operations of an "underground" network run by Communists in Cleveland as late as 1952 were described in Federal Court yesterday by a former Ohio Communist party leader.

The witness, David Whitney Garfield Jr., of Canfield, Ohio, said he lived in the "underground" for 21 months, using fictitious names to get jobs and keeping to himself or associating only with a few trusted party workers.

Testifying at the trial of 11 alleged Ohio Communist party leaders charged with plotting to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the government, Garfield said the "underground" had $10,000 to $20,000 in cash funds to carry on its work.

He said Martin Chancey, one of the defendants, told him of the funds, but said he did not know where they were hidden.

Garfield, 32, said the Communists who opened their doors to him were known as "colonizers" and were sent here from larger cities, such as New York.

He said he was ordered to cease his organization activities in Canton in 1950 and to go "underground" here. FBI agents were on his trail at least twice, the witness said, finally forcing him to flee town.

Garfield said he was on his way home from work in February, 1952, when two FBI agents stopped him on the street, showed him their credentials and asked him several questions about the Communist party.

"I told them I had nothing to say, but right then and there I decided to quit the party," he said. "I went back to Youngstown and in March of 1953 I was expelled from the party for desertion. I never went back."

He said he had done organization work for the Communists in the steel mills at Youngstown before his transfer to Canton.

The sombrero is so called from the Spanish word for shade.

Cadillac

Half its Horsepower is for Safety!

A pretty steep hill, you'd say?

Well, not so far as this gentleman is concerned. He just gave the accelerator a little encouragement with his toe... and swept from bottom to top so effortlessly he was scarcely aware of it.

For he's at the wheel of a beautiful new 1956 Cadillac. And beneath that long, sleek, graceful hood rests the smoothest, most powerful engine in Cadillac history.

The fact is that this great new Cadillac engine is powerful and dynamic far beyond the requirements of normal usage. In the course of ordinary motoring, it is entirely possible that the driver will never put the accelerator down to the floor board.

But how wonderful that extra length of throttle will be if he does need it!

It will be there for that burst of speed that can free him from a difficult driving situation.

It will be there in case he needs it for safety in passing... or to answer the challenge of a mountain road.

And even when not in active use, that reserve of power will add to his motoring pleasure.

It will bring him confidence and contentment and peace of mind... and it will provide unusual operating economy and dependability.

Of course, Cadillac's magnificent performance is only part of the exciting Cadillac story for 1956. There is inspiring beauty... and extraordinary luxury... and superlative craftsmanship.

Why not stop in soon and see what we mean?

We've got the keys and the car—all you have to provide is an hour of your time.

We can promise you... it will be the most revealing sixty minutes you ever spent at the wheel of a motor car.

For he's at the wheel of a beautiful new 1956 Cadillac. And beneath that long, sleek, graceful hood rests the smoothest, most powerful engine in Cadillac history.

The fact is that this great new Cadillac engine is powerful and dynamic far beyond the requirements of normal usage. In the course of ordinary motoring, it is entirely possible that the driver will never put the accelerator down to the floor board.

But how wonderful that extra length of throttle will be if he does need it!

It will be there for that burst of speed that can free him from a difficult driving situation.

It will be there in case he needs it for safety in passing... or to answer the challenge of a mountain road.

And even when not in active use, that reserve of power will add to his motoring pleasure.

It will bring him confidence and contentment and peace of mind... and it will provide unusual operating economy and dependability.

Of course, Cadillac's magnificent performance is only part of the exciting Cadillac story for 1956. There is inspiring beauty... and extraordinary luxury... and superlative craftsmanship.

Why not stop in soon and see what we mean?

We've got the keys and the car—all you have to provide is an hour of your time.

We can promise you... it will be the most revealing sixty minutes you ever spent at the wheel of a motor car.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have three children under four years of age. I often wonder if my child rearing philosophy is wrong, and would like your opinion.

I make time for my children by having occasional help with cleaning and ironing when things pile up. In keeping an eye on the eldest child's play, I sometimes observe situations that need adult supervision—for the sake of my child and other children involved. But I find that certain other adults (who should be concerned) take a rather belligerent attitude when I approach the subject in a quiet, friendly way.

For example, a young divorced mother has returned to her parents' home in the neighborhood, bringing her children. She has taken a job and leaves the children to her mother's care—which is wrong I think. Doing without a father is hard on a child; and what kind of mother goes back to her parents to be a girl again—handing her responsibilities to them because she has failed? If it were me, I would brave it out.

Bad Example
The divorcee's son—I'll call him Rex—has been taking my son's toys from time to time—with no correction from the grandmother. Once I went to retrieve a toy but, seeing it would cause trouble with the grandmother, I let him keep it. However, my son is at an impressionable age, and he sees Rex upheld by the grandmother in taking what doesn't belong to him. And as you know, children are influenced by example.

The other day Rex took another toy, and I told my son to fetch it home when Rex was through playing with it. But Rex ran crying to his grandmother, saying the toy was his. Whereupon she yelled derogatory remarks about the toy, while also saying "Give it back." As she was out of sight, he didn't obey.

Later I asked Rex nicely, in his grandmother's hearing, to return the toy; and again she tiraded about "the ugly, nasty, rusty, old thing; you wouldn't want it anyway"—and finally he brought it to us, still crying that it was his. I called out nicely to the grandmother to say that I was trying to teach my boys right from wrong—but she turned on her sweeper full blast, drowning my voice. I felt badly, leaving her mad about it.

Should I try to stick to principle? Or is it better to ignore these things? In a situation like this, when I make an enemy without wanting to, I am distressed and wonder if I am wrong.

R. W.
DEAR R. W.: Your neighbor—Mrs. X, let's call her—the grandmother who repels your cooperative overtures—is a problem to herself, a victim of invincible ignorance, it seems.

Her highly emotional, illogical handling of her grandson—which permits him to grow up without habits of rectitude, and without a clean-cut sense of property rights and respect for same—probably is a flashback to the way she reared her daughter. Which probably accounts for the daughter's failure in marriage, and-or her irresponsible relapse back into the parents' keeping—giving them her children to care for.

It appears that family pattern of invincible ignorance is being handed down from one generation to the next, breeding trouble throughout—the latest victim, being young Rex. However, you are a bit of a problem to yourself too, in relation to the problem they present. Your theory is correct, that children should be drilled in honest consideration behavior at play—and that this is a parent's or guardian's duty. But where you go wrong is in your attempts to sell your ideas to Mrs. X. My advice is, act upon your principles; don't be either evangelical or apologetic.

Do Right Thing
In going after your child's toys, taken by Rex, and in addressing your appeal indirectly to Mrs. X, your manner is a blend of self-righteousness and coaxing conciliation. This is a mistake. It "personalizes" the matter, making it a "rub," so to speak, between two households. And Mrs. X reacts involuntarily with hostile defensiveness, feeling guilty without recognizing it.

You should supervise your children's play with other children, and act immediately to support fair rules, without appealing to the neighborhood elders, if misbehavior comes to your attention. If certain children are troublemakers, cope quietly to safeguard your rights—and don't talk about it. Remember the proverb: "He who tries to please everybody doesn't please anybody."

Chief Justice Post Sought By Taft

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Plain Dealer said last night Kingsley A. Taft will be a candidate for Chief Justice of the Ohio Supreme Court next year.

Industry Jobs Seen Needed To Aid Farmer

WASHINGTON — Undersecretary of Agriculture Morse has suggested more industry for the low income farm areas of the nation as a means of raising the standard of living for many making less than $1,000 a year.

Morse told the Senate-Economic subcommittee studying the low income problem that the condition is concentrated in agriculture. "Less than one fifth of the farmers in areas of low rural income produced and sold as much as $2,500 worth of products in 1949," he said.

In reply to a question from Sen. Flanders (R-Vt), Morse said low income farmers can supplement their livelihood through jobs in factories if industry moves to these areas.

Average schooling of adults on farms is seven years, Morse said, and, "there are few outside jobs and little use of machinery on low income farms."

Morse said efforts are being made to help farmers in this situation.

Morse said an organized, long term program has been started to improve standards of living in the low income rural areas. He reported "important progress" with over 27 states participating.

THANKSGIVING DAY

AMERICA and the individual people who help make it great will, on this Thanksgiving Day, express to providence the most heartfelt gratitude. But too often it will be thankfulness in the spirit of dollars and cents—without enough sincerity, and reflection, to go with it.

Pride of possession dispossesses the true thankfulness. Recorded history has proved times without number that prosperous eras lure human beings toward strange gods. Yet it need not be thus on Thanksgiving Day, a day on which families draw together for feasting. The great majority of families will have access, through the marvelous American system of production and distribution, to the good things which the entire nation yields.

Americans are favored as no other peoples have ever been. But it requires few twists and turns of fate to bring a people to its knees. Any one of a number of possible catastrophes could change the American scene from peace and prosperity to dole and doom.

Americans of today, with plenty, should certainly be more thankful than the pilgrims, who had little, were.

America, rich and powerful, is in the position of England a half century ago. Rudyard Kipling wrote a great poem about a pompous British celebration of that time. The chief message of the poem was:

"Lord God of hosts be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget."

That is the proper mood for America on this Thanksgiving Day.

IMPOSSIBLE RUSSIA

WHAT THE FREE world hopes to gain by further dealings with communist Russia is hard to understand, in view of recent developments. The report that four million people of the republic of Moldavia, a former Romanian province, have been driven from their homes and transported to Siberia, has been officially verified. Moscow makes the claim these unhappy people had volunteered as pioneers in Siberian camps.

The evacuation was carried out with all the usual Russian cruelty. The people were not permitted to take their possessions other than what they could carry on their backs. They were herded into box cars. They will become slave labor, engaged in building a chain of forts along the Siberian frontier.

Confiscated land will be used to increase the Russian farm program, which has turned out to be an almost complete failure.

An appeal to save the people has been sent to the United Nations, a futile gesture in view of the record of the UN in solving similar situations. The rape of Moldavia is nothing new in Russian practice. Millions upon millions of other peoples have either been dispossessed or actually murdered.

Coexistence with Russia, other than today's type, will never come about. It is impossible to find a common ground with a murderer.

Goldfish Relaxes Executive

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (P)—One of Robert W. Sarnoff's hobbies is collecting dictionaries. And to him the most important word in any dictionary right now is the word "color."

At 37, Bob, son of Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, head of the RCA communications empire, has risen to the post of executive vice president of the National Broadcasting Co.

The job wasn't handed to him on a platter. He worked his way up in the company, and had to take his lumps along the way.

To the younger Sarnoff has fallen many of the chores of supervising the spending of $12 million within the next year in NBC's gigantic expansion of its color telecasting facilities. This will bring to more than $75 million the amount spent by RCA and NBC to promote color television.

"The 12 million is only a drop in the bucket to what NBC will spend on color TV in the next few years," said Bob. "We believe television will be an all-color industry in less than 10 years—and it could be a lot sooner than that."

Young Sarnoff doesn't regard color television as a gamble. He looks on video's rainbow future as a sure investment, an inevitable step that has to be taken.

He is impatient of critics who feel color is being rushed.

"The mass production of color sets will put them within reach of the mass buying public," he said, adding:

"A 21-inch color set today is relatively no more expensive than a 10-inch black and white set was less than 10 years ago. There are already between 30,000 and 50,000 color sets in use, and one firm alone is now turning them out at the rate of 1,000 a week."

Color is only one of the headaches the young executive has to deal with. Across his busy desk pour the problems of hundreds of radio and TV network stations, the queries of sponsors, the complaints of high-priced stars.

"There are more phone calls in this business than in any other in the world," said Sarnoff, who sometimes feels it might be pleasant to spend a day all alone in a dark closet, completely away from Mr. Bell's invention.

Sarnoff believes that in another decade television will be even more important than it is now. "It will have become the actual fountainhead of most creat-

These Days

Few men in public life are more affable or better liked than Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States. He has achieved the highest distinction that can come to a lawyer in this country. When Earl Warren was appointed Chief Justice, he announced that he would not leave the bench for an elective position. The position of Chief Justice is singular in American life and it is not a stepping-stone to the Presidency.

The illness of President Eisenhower effected this political change: It had been expected that he would run for a second term and that he would be elected; therefore no important Republican projected himself as a candidate for 1956. When it was thought that he could not run, many prominent Republicans began to toy with the idea that each was his suitable successor. Now that he is better, fewer are proclaiming their worthiness.

There is no evidence that Chief Justice Earl Warren has encouraged discussion of his name as a candidate. However, many New Dealers and Democrats and some Republicans have proclaimed him as the inevitable successor. It is not astonishing that those most active in his behalf have had a long reputation of projecting candidates for the Republican Party up to the moment of the Republican Convention. After that meeting, they support the Democrat and devote themselves to smearing the man whose nomination they so fiercely advocated. It sometimes looks like a political trick.

In the instance of Earl Warren, it sure does look like a trick because evidence from Southern and Border states indicates that he could not carry them because of his decision concerning the integration of races in the school system. Without discussing the merits of desegregation, the political fact is that the Republicans need a few Southern states and all the Border states and it now looks as though Warren could not get them.

Those who so ardently mention his name in preference to Nixon, Knowland, or any other candidate need to establish that the Chief Justice's opinion on desegregation will not weaken his chances of election.

For this much is certain: The Republican Party does not believe that it need run to lose in 1956, as had to be done when it ran against Franklin D. Roosevelt. Only one accident could have defeated Roosevelt and the accident did not occur during four elections.

The Republican Party expects to win whether Dwight D. Eisenhower runs or not and therefore the Republican Convention will not choose a candidate who is likely to lose. This has nothing to do with a candidate's fitness or worthiness. It has to do with his prospects.

The same group of non-Republicans offers Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother, as an alternative to Warren. Again, it would seem to be an advocacy designed to achieve a defeat.

For whatever merit Milton Eisenhower may have, he has not long or actively been associated with the Republican Party and few Republicans know him except as one of the Eisenhower brothers. Some have heard that he is the real brains of the Eisenhower Administration, but counterbalancing, they have also heard that he has generally been associated with the New Deal.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

AT ETHEL'S orders, Shandy and Joe lifted the unconscious man and carried him into a guest room where Shandy, at Ethel's orders, removed Doc's trousers while she brought towels, hot water, and made a tourniquet to stop the bleeding.

And all the time she talked, words pouring out of her as though floodgates had been opened. "What a fool I've been. I thought—I was afraid—it was Joe who'd done all this."

"That's why you smashed the pane of glass."

She nodded. "I thought he was jealous of Roger Brindle and so I was partly to blame for what had happened to Roger. It has been hell, thinking that. But Joe had no reason to harm Mrs. Fleming or Doc. He didn't do it. Thank God, Mr. Stowe, I can leave him now. I'm free of him."

The uncharacteristic loquacity stopped. She said in her usual tone, "Get some brandy."

As he started toward the stairs he saw Carol standing as he had left her at the foot of Paula's bed. Joe was crouching, one arm stretched out under the bed.

"Don't touch that gun, Joe!" he said sharply. "Leave it where it is."

Joe grinned. "I just wanted to look at it." He gave a sideways glance at Shandy. "A .22. That's what I figured."

"Out," Shandy said, and after a moment's hesitation Joe left the room with a last glance at Paula unconscious on the bed and Carol still standing at the foot, her eyes blank.

Ethel held Doc's head and let a little brandy trickle down his throat, careful not to choke him. He swallowed, opened his eyes, and almost instantly he was alert.

"Good work," he told Ethel, looking at the tourniquet.

"I haven't called a doctor yet," Shandy said. "Who do you want?"

"Bring me my bag," Dr. Thomas replied. "It's in Paula's room. I can deal with this myself."

"You can hardly probe for that bullet."

"I can if I have to," Thomas retorted. "Do as I say. We don't want the police here."

"Who doesn't?" Shandy asked. "Anyhow, this thing has gone too far. Someone is berserk and we'll have to stop it. The truth about Roger is going to come out whether we like it or not."

"Let's not try to pull any wool over each other's eyes," Dr. Thomas said. "I'm in this thing up to my neck. I covered for Carol in the first place and I'm stuck with it now. If that comes out it will just about finish me, especially with people feeling about Roger."

"Armchair Therapy" For Heart Condition

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

"ARMCHAIR" therapy may be a greater aid to some heart patients than the traditionally ordered strict bed rest routine.

Some doctors believe that permitting patients with myocardial infarction and congestive failure to spend much of their time sitting in comfortable armchairs speeds recovery.

Slows Circulation

Prolonged bed rest, they argue, slows circulation. This, along with the pressure exerted by continued rest in bed upon the deep veins in the calf and thigh, may lead to thrombosis or blood clotting.

Bedsore, constipation and other minor hazards you are likely to encounter during a long period spent in bed, may be eased or eliminated by changing to a sitting position in a chair. It may also help prevent your muscles from becoming weak.

Heart Works Harder

Actually, lying in bed might cause your heart's left ventricle to work harder than it should, with pulmonary congestion resulting. Your heart does not rest more just because you are reclining. Standing quietly causes less cardiac output than lying down.

One big advantage in the armchair method is the improvement in the patient's mental attitude. Naturally, you're going to feel a lot better mentally if you don't have to lie in bed all the time. Your doctor might not advise this type of therapy in your case. But if he does—and don't try it without his orders—here is what he'll probably tell you to do.

During the first and second days you will be permitted to sit in a chair for 15 minutes to half an hour. Rest your feet comfortably on the floor.

Gradually, this time for sitting is increased. As a rule, the sitting up period is doubled, or almost doubled, each succeeding day until you are spending from six to eight hours in a chair every day.

Modified Program

This program, however, might have to be modified in some cases. That's up to your doctor; don't try it without his permission. Just because you can sit up, don't think you can walk around. You should not. And you must have aid in getting to and from the chair.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Answer: If your wife has a non-infectious type of tuberculosis, it is not likely that you would contract the disease from her.

However, periodic tests of her sputum are advisable to determine whether or not the infection has become active again.

THANKSGIVING DAY

AMERICA and the individual people who help make it great will, on this Thanksgiving Day, express to providence the most heartfelt gratitude. But too often it will be thankfulness in the spirit of dollars and cents—without enough sincerity, and reflection, to go with it.

Pride of possession dispossesses the true thankfulness. Recorded history has proved times without number that prosperous eras lure human beings toward strange gods.

Yet it need not be thus on Thanksgiving Day, a day on which families draw together for feasting. The great majority of families will have access, through the marvelous American system of production and distribution, to the good things which the entire nation yields.

Americans are favored as no other peoples have ever been. But it requires few twists and turns of fate to bring a people to its knees. Any one of a number of possible catastrophes could change the American scene from peace and prosperity to dole and doom.

Americans of today, with plenty, should certainly be more thankful than the pilgrims, who had little, were.

America, rich and powerful, is in the position of England a half century ago. Rudyard Kipling wrote a great poem about a pompous British celebration of that time. The chief message of the poem was:

"Lord God of hosts be with us yet, lest we forget, lest we forget."

That is the proper mood for America on this Thanksgiving Day.

IMPOSSIBLE RUSSIA

WHAT THE FREE world hopes to gain by further dealings with communist Russia is hard to understand, in view of recent developments. The report that four million people of the republic of Moldavia, a former Romanian province, have been driven from their homes and transported to Siberia, has been officially verified. Moscow makes the claim these unhappy people had volunteered as pioneers in Siberian camps.

The evacuation was carried out with all the usual Russian cruelty. The people were not permitted to take their possessions other than what they could carry on their backs. They were herded into box cars. They will become slave labor, engaged in building a chain of forts along the Siberian frontier.

Confiscated land will be used to increase the Russian farm program, which has turned out to be an almost complete failure.

An appeal to save the people has been sent to the United Nations, a futile gesture in view of the record of the UN in solving similar situations. The rape of Moldavia is nothing new in Russian practice. Millions upon millions of other peoples have either been dispossessed or actually murdered.

Coexistence with Russia, other than today's type, will never come about. It is impossible to find a common ground with a murderer.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Few men in public life are more affable or better liked than Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States. He has achieved the highest distinction that can come to a lawyer in this country. When Earl Warren was appointed Chief Justice, he announced that he would not leave the bench for an elective position. The position of Chief Justice is singular in American life and it is not a stepping-stone to the Presidency.

The illness of President Eisenhower effected this political change: It had been expected that he would run for a second term and that he would be elected; therefore no important Republican projected himself as a candidate for 1956. When it was thought that he could not run, many prominent Republicans began to toy with the idea that each was his suitable successor. Now that he is better, fewer are proclaiming their worthiness.

There is no evidence that Chief Justice Earl Warren has encouraged discussion of his name as a candidate. However, many New Dealers and Democrats and some Republicans have proclaimed him as the inevitable successor. It is not astonishing that those most active in his behalf have had a long reputation of projecting candidates for the Republican Party up to the moment of the Republican Convention. After that meeting, they support the Democrat and devote themselves to smearing the man whose nomination they so fiercely advocated. It sometimes looks like a political trick.

In the instance of Earl Warren, it sure does look like a trick because evidence from Southern and Border states indicates that he could not carry them because of his decision concerning the integration of races in the school system. Without discussing the merits of desegregation, the political fact is that the Republicans need a few Southern states and all the Border states and it now looks as though Warren could not get them.

Those who so ardently mention his name in preference to Nixon, Knowland, or any other candidate need to establish that the Chief Justice's opinion on desegregation will not weaken his chances of election.

For this much is certain: The Republican Party does not believe that it need run to lose in 1956, as had to be done when it ran against Franklin D. Roosevelt. Only one accident could have defeated Roosevelt and the accident did not occur during four elections.

The Republican Party expects to win whether Dwight D. Eisenhower runs or not and therefore the Republican Convention will not choose a candidate who is likely to lose. This has nothing to do with a candidate's fitness or worthiness. It has to do with his prospects.

The same group of non-Republicans offers Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother, as an alternative to Warren. Again, it would seem to be an advocacy designed to achieve a defeat.

For whatever merit Milton Eisenhower may have, he has not long or actively been associated with the Republican Party and few Republicans know him except as one of the Eisenhower brothers. Some have heard that he is the real brains of the Eisenhower Administration, but counterbalancing, they have also heard that he has generally been associated with the New Deal.

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
AT ETHEL'S orders, Shandy and Joe lifted the unconscious man and carried him into a guest room where Shandy, at Ethel's orders, removed Doc's trousers while she brought towels, hot water, and made a tourniquet to stop the bleeding.

And all the time she talked, words pouring out of her as though floodgates had been opened. "What a fool I've been. I thought—I was afraid—it was Joe who'd done all this."

"That's why you smashed the pane of glass."

She nodded. "I thought he was jealous of Roger Brindle and so I was partly to blame for what had happened to Roger. It has been hell, thinking that. But Joe had no reason to harm Mrs. Fleming or Doc. He didn't do it. Thank God, Mr. Stowe, I can leave him now. I'm free of him."

The uncharacteristic loquacity stopped. She said in her usual tone, "Get some brandy."

As he started toward the stairs he saw Carol standing as he had left her at the foot of Paula's bed. Joe was crouching, one arm stretched out under the bed.

"Don't touch that gun, Joe!" he said sharply. "Leave it where it is."

Joe grinned. "I just wanted to look at it." He gave a sideways glance at Shandy. "A .22. That's what I figured."

"Out," Shandy said, and after a moment's hesitation Joe left the room with a last glance at Paula unconscious on the bed and Carol still standing at the foot, her eyes blank.

Ethel held Doc's head and let a little brandy trickle down his throat, careful not to choke him. He swallowed, opened his eyes, and almost instantly he was alert.

"Good work," he told Ethel, looking at the tourniquet.

"I haven't called a doctor yet," Shandy said. "Who do you want?"

"Bring me my bag," Dr. Thomas replied. "It's in Paula's room. I can deal with this myself."

"You can hardly probe for that bullet."

"I can if I have to," Thomas retorted. "Do as I say. We don't want the police here."

"Who doesn't?" Shandy asked. "Anyhow, this thing has gone too far. Someone is berserk and we'll have to stop it. The truth about Roger is going to come out whether we like it or not."

"Let's not try to pull any wool over each other's eyes," Dr. Thomas said. "I'm in this thing up to my neck. I covered for Carol in the first place and I'm stuck with it now. If that comes out it will just about finish me, especially with people feeling about Roger."

as they do. But Carol—she got under my skin. I don't know what it is about her." He gave a short laugh. "Now she tries to kill me and I can't do a thing about it. I have to keep still for my own sake."

"Did you see her do it?"

"No, I—well, I—"

"Okay, you were making a few passes. But I can't see how you could have failed noticing if she had a revolver in her hand."

"I only—bring me that bag," Dr. Thomas said harshly and with a shrug Shandy did as he requested.

"Can I help you?" he asked when he had set the bag on the bed within the doctor's reach.

"Ethel will help. And shut the door behind you."

"I'll leave some brandy. Looks as though you are going to earn it," Shandy poured a small amount into a glass and left the bottle for Thomas. In Paula's bedroom he lifted the girl's head and held the glass to her lips. She swallowed convulsively and opened her eyes. They fell on the blood-stained sheet but she did not cry out. Instead she looked at it with a kind of savage delight.

"Carol did it," she said. "She shot Doc."

"No, Dr. Thomas knew. Tonight he told her he knew and he'd protect her if she was nice to him. They thought I was asleep and he was whispering. But he warned her about attacking Mrs. Fleming. He said it had to stop. And he tried to make love to her. Then she shot him."

"Did you actually see her with the gun in her hand?" Shandy asked. "Be careful, Paula. Think before you speak."

His eyes held hers. He watched temptation battle with fear. At length she capitulated sullenly.

"No, I didn't see her do it. I was pretending to be asleep because I had to know. But there was no one else here."

"If your eyes were closed, you can't be sure about that."

Malice glinted in her pale eyes. "You want to protect her, don't you? Like Doc. She did it for you, of course. For your money, that is. She needs it."

Paula broke off as sounds came from behind the closed door of the guest room, grunts, curses, a half-stifled sound between a groan and a yelp as Doc probed for the bullet in his thigh.

"I think I'm going to be sick," Paula said.

"Try it," Shandy warned her grimly. "I can take just so much. You pull yourself together."

At length the door opened and Ethel came out into the hall. Shandy went to meet her. She was shaking.

Copyright, 1954, by Ellmore Dennison. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

"All right?" he asked. "He got it out. We did our best, stopped the bleeding and cleaned out the wound as well as we could."

"What about calling another doctor? Suppose there's infection?"

"I don't know," Ethel said wearily. "He said I wasn't to dare call anyone. I don't know. I just wish to God I was out of this mad-house."

High heels clicked on the stairs as Carol came up with a whisper of satin, a wave of perfume. "I telephoned Helen Thomas," she said in a tone of satisfaction. "She was bound to find out anyhow so I thought it was wiser to get her here and make her see reason."

From the guest room Doc shouted furiously, "Carol! You fool! Now you've really done it."

When Ethel had run back to the guest room to prevent the irate doctor from getting up, Shandy followed Carol down to the library. She whirled around to face him, then, without a trace of her usual languor.

"Shandy," she whispered, "Doc thinks I shot him."

"I gathered that."

"Don't look at me that way! Doc tried to make love to me as though it was a kind of bargain so he wouldn't say anything about what happened to Roger and Mrs. Fleming. As though I'd done it. I think he's crazy."

"But you aren't," Shandy assured her. "Calling Mrs. Thomas—that was really clever of you."

Carol smiled faintly. "She has always been madly jealous of me. Doc won't dare do anything while she is around."

"What could he do?"

"He could cause you trouble," she said flatly. "Her manner had changed. 'I told him we—expect to marry. And he is in love with me.'"

"So we expect to marry," Shandy said oddly.

Carol's hand touched his shoulder, her arm crept around his neck. "I've always understood how you felt about me."

"Have you?" He looked down at the face so close to his, poignantly aware of the body that pressed against him. "But do you understand how I feel about Lois Fleming?"

"I warn you, Carol—don't touch her again. Is that clear? I've kept still so far but I won't where she is concerned."

"Shandy!" She sounded bewildered. "Are you trying to blame me—like Doc—like Paula? But I thought you—"

The doorbell rang.

NEW YORK (AP)—One of Robert W. Sarnoff's hobbies is collecting dictionaries. And to him the most important word in any dictionary right now is the word "color."

At 37, Bob, son of Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, head of the RCA communications empire, has risen to the post of executive vice president of the National Broadcasting Co.

The job wasn't handed to him on a platter. He worked his way up in the company, and had to take his lumps along the way.

To the younger Sarnoff has fallen many of the chores of supervising the spending of $12 million within the next year in NBC's gigantic expansion of its color telecasting facilities. This will bring to more than $75 million the amount spent by RCA and NBC to promote color television.

"The 12 million is only a drop in the bucket to what NBC will spend on color TV in the next few years," said Bob. "We believe television will be an all-color industry in less than 10 years—and it could be a lot sooner than that."

Young Sarnoff doesn't regard color television as a gamble. He looks on video's rainbow future

"What's Wrong With Parents" was the topic of a teen-age panel discussion held Monday night in the Court and Main Restaurant by the Child Study Club.

The moderator, Dr. Lloyd Sprouse and the panelists were introduced by Mrs. William Cook, vice president of the organization. Panelists were Nancy Barnhill, Julian Smith, Barbara Valentine, Roger Southward and George Kerr.

The panelists stressed the point that parents were in "too many civic affairs and that they should drop outside interests long enough to do things at home with their children."

The panel felt that if the parents were home they could direct their music and reading and TV habits into the right channels.

One panelist said "parents do not let their children grow up politically. The schools teach us about world problems and acquaint us with a lot more things than our parents actually know about the policies in our own government and the world at large. I feel the age level should be lowered when it comes to voting."

One pet peeve of the panel was that parents do not let them pick their own clothes. Also they felt that parents should not force school work upon them but let it become a part of them.

Another panelist said he felt there should be a certain time set aside so they could study, and during that period the TV should be turned off and the family try to make it easy to concentrate.

A suggestion was made that parents quit taking away youth's privileges, but give them more, as the panelists felt compliments would help them a lot more than "nagging." They said the parents can talk things over with them constructively, but felt they should not tell them when they should be home.

One male panelist said "I feel if you trust your child enough, your child will respect that trust and be home at a reasonable hour."

Another point brought out in the discussion was that parents should let their children choose their own profession, and not try to make a child into something just because their father was in the same profession.

One panelist said "If they let us grow up and enjoy our home and have friends in, we will not want to go out to enjoy good times and maybe get into the wrong company."

One of the girls said "We need to have responsibilities in the home and special duties to do to make us feel we are an integral part, and important to our own home."

Dr. Sprouse in his summary said, "Let young people make their own decisions, but guide them, not command them. Parents should spend more time at home with their children, and they should let their children grow up by giving them more responsibility."

Mrs. Gladden Troutman, president, welcomed the guests and thanked the panel and Dr. Sprouse.

Mrs. Charles Kirkpatrick gave a history of the Club, which is now 11 years old. Four charter members were present, Mrs. Henry Helwagen, Mrs. Kenneth Blue, Mrs. Fritz Sievert and Mrs. Kirkpatrick.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Paul Hang, Mrs. James Rice and Mrs. Paul Brobst.

During the short business meeting it was decided to hold a gift exchange at the next meeting which will be a Christmas party, scheduled for Dec. 19 in the home of Mrs. Willson Leight of Watt St. with Mrs. Robert Wills as co-hostess.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Palestine's tangled story involves not only the Jews and Arabs but the United States and Russia. It may, if war breaks out, set off the spark that ignites the world. This is the background:

Palestine, about New Jersey's size, has 1,600,000 people, half of whom entered there in the past 10 years. Of the total, 1½ million are Jews, 70 per cent of the rest are Moslems.

From the time the Romans crushed them in 70 A. D. the Jews, until recently, did not have a majority in Palestine. Nevertheless, through the centuries they looked upon it as their homeland.

The Turks, when they jumped into World War I on Germany's side, held not only Palestine but the surrounding Arab areas. To win the Arabs from the Turks, the French and British promised them that if the Allies won they would break up the Turkish Empire into Arab states.

Britain also—in the Balfour Declaration of 1917—said it would look with favor on the creation of a home for Jews in Palestine. The Jews at that time were only one tenth of the population in Palestine.

The Allies won and began setting up the Arab states, under French and British controls. The League of Nations also gave Britain a mandate — which meant control but not ownership — of Palestine.

Came World War II and the massacre of Jews in Germany. It stung the world's conscience—the Western world's, that is. The Jews, worldwide, meanwhile, had been pushing for a nation of their own in Palestine. They could always point to that British Balfour Declaration of 1917. The British had never made good.

At war's end the British said they would quit Palestine. Jews poured in. Arabs feared Jewish immigration would swamp them. Besides, they objected to creation of a new Jewish state. But in 1947 the United Nations approved this idea: partition Palestine, letting part of it be a Jewish state, part an Arab state.

On May 14, 1948, the Jews proclaimed the independence of Israel. The next day Egypt, followed by other Arab countries, attacked Israel. The Jews, outnumbered, outfought the Arabs and, by the time an armistice was agreed on, held not only what the U. N. had intended to be Jewish Palestine but most of what had started out to be Arab Palestine.

This armistice, obtained by the U. N., was supposed to be only temporary. The U. N. thought perhaps peace could be agreed on. It hasn't been agreed on yet. Scarcely a week has passed since 1949 that some bloody clash has not occurred along the armistice line between Egypt and her four Arab neighbors: Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Egypt.

That armistice line—besides the Arabs' hatred of the Jews and their refusal to recognize Israel as a state—was one of the sorest points. While that line left Israel in pos-

President's Thanksgiving Proclamation Is Issued

WASHINGTON (AP)—The text of waning year we turn again to Al- President Eisenhower's 1955 Thanksgiving proclamation:

The custom of devoting one day each year to national thanksgiving is a wise and ancient one, hallowed by observance in the days before we became a nation, and sanctioned throughout the succeeding generations. It is therefore in that at the fruitful season of the session of most of what had been Arab Palestine, Jordan held a piece bordering on Jerusalem, and Egypt had a part called the Gaza Strip. The U. N. Armistice also called for demilitarized zones.

Early this month fighting broke out between the Egyptians and Israelis in one of those zones — called El Auja — on the frontier between Egypt and Israel.

By itself this would have been had enough. But the fighting began shortly after Egypt reportedly had ordered 80 million dollars worth of arms from Communist Czechoslovakia. It meant Russia was beginning to make solid contact with the Arabs.

The West, but particularly the United States, while helping Israel get on its feet wanted not only to keep the friendship of the Arabs but to keep them away from Russian influence.

Then British Prime Minister Eden made a proposal — the United States hasn't gone along with it—which infuriated the Jews. He suggested Jews and Arabs settle their differences by making "compromises." The Jews said what he really meant was that they should give back to the Arabs that part of Arab Palestine which they had conquered in the fighting of 1948-49. They said no.

They appealed to the United States for arms. This country said it would consider their request. At once Egypt warned the United States that if it gave the Jews arms it would lose the friendship of the Arab world of which Egypt is leader.

The United States wants to keep the Arabs friendly but, because of the large Jewish population in this country, has to think twice about refusing Israel arms.

If full-scale war breaks out in Palestine, it could in the end involve this country and Russia.

At this time of thanksgiving, may we express our deep appreciation of those forebears who, more than three centuries ago, celebrated the first Thanksgiving Day. Through their industry and courage, our nation was hewn from the virgin forest, and through their steadfastness and faith, the ideals of liberty and justice have become our cherished inheritance.

May we lift up our hearts in special prayers of gratitude for the abundance of our endowments, both material and spiritual, for the preservation of our way of life, in its richness and fullness, and for the religious faith which has wielded such beneficent influence upon our destiny. May we show our thanks for our own bounty by remembrance of those less fortunate, and may the spirit of this thanksgiving season move us to share with them to alleviate their need.

Now, therefore, I, Dwight D. Eisenhower, President of the United States of America, having in mind the joint congressional resolution of December 26, 1941, which designated the fourth Thursday of November in each year as Thanksgiving Day and made that day a legal holiday, to hereby proclaim Thursday, the twenty-fourth day of November, 1955, as a day of national thanksgiving; and I urge all our citizens to observe the day with reverence. Let us, on the appointed day, in our homes and our accustomed places of worship, each according to his own faith, bow before God and give Him humble thanks.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

Sokolsky's These Days

One of the best speeches I ever listened to in support of the private enterprise system was delivered by Milton Eisenhower before the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association.

But again it is a question of the prospects of being elected and it is extremely doubtful that Mil on Eisenhower can develop enough political steam between next January, when the President is expected to announce his intentions, and August when the convention will be held.

So, for practical politicians the prospects lie among Richard Nixon, the Vice President, William Knowland, the Senator, and Tom Dewey, the perennial. They are measuring these men for size in terms of winning possibilities. There has been some talk of George Humphrey, the Secretary of the Treasury, but his association with big business will undoubtedly hamper him, although all admit his capacity to hold the position.

And in the back of every Republican's mind is the hope that Dwight D. Eisenhower will decide to try for a second term. It is believed now that he can win against any Democrat whose name has up to now come to the fore. There is no hope that he will speak up soon enough to help another candidate.

U.S. Living Cost Holding Steady

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government reports that living costs were unchanged between September and October.

Food prices were lower but this drop was offset by higher transportation and housing costs to leave the government index unchanged.

The figures were announced by the Labor Department's Bureau of Statistics.

Its living cost index for October was 114.9 per cent of the 1947-49 average, meaning that what cost a dollar in that period now costs nearly 15 cents more.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The U. S. Department of Commerce today released more farm census reports on individual Ohio counties, preparatory to a complete statewide report for 1954.

Vision Of Christ 'Speaks' To Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP)—An important Italian newspaper says the vision of Christ, which is reported by Vatican sources to have appeared before ailing Pope Pius XII, spoke to the pontiff.

Corriere Della Sera of Milan printed the first account to attribute words to the vision.

It reported the vision clearly and distinctly said, "The Master is present and calls you."

The weekly magazine Oggi first wrote of the incident but did not say the vision spoke.

So far l'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper has not said anything about the incident.

Detective-Slayer To Die In Chair

CHICAGO (AP)—Richard Carpenter, captured in one of Chicago's most intensive manhunts, was sentenced yesterday to die in the electric chair March 16 for murdering a policeman.

Unruly and disheveled, the 26-year-old gunman was carried into the courtroom of Judge Gibson E. Gorman of Criminal Court to hear his attorneys plead for a new trial. Six bailiffs held him in a chair and quieted him during his outbursts at the session. He was manacled and in leg irons.

Judge Gorman denied a new trial and set the execution date. A jury convicted Carpenter of murdering Policeman William J. Murphy in a subway station.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Palestine's tangled story involves not only the Jews and Arabs but the United States and Russia. It may, if war breaks out, set off the spark that ignites the world. This is the background:

Palestine, about New Jersey's size, has 1,600,000 people, half of whom entered there in the past 10 years. Of the total, 1½ million are Jews, 70 per cent of the rest are Moslems.

From the time the Romans crushed them in 70 A. D. the Jews, until recently, did not have a majority in Palestine. Nevertheless, through the centuries they looked upon it as their homeland.

The Turks, when they jumped into World War I on Germany's side, held not only Palestine but the surrounding Arab areas. To win the Arabs from the Turks, the French and British promised them that if the Allies won they would break up the Turkish Empire into Arab states.

Britain also—in the Balfour Declaration of 1917—said it would look with favor on the creation of a home for Jews in Palestine. The Jews at that time were only one tenth of the population in Palestine.

The Allies won and began setting up the Arab states, under French and British controls. The League of Nations also gave Britain a mandate — which meant control but not ownership — of Palestine.

Came World War II and the massacre of Jews in Germany. It stung the world's conscience—the Western world's, that is. The Jews, worldwide, meanwhile, had been pushing for a nation of their own in Palestine. They could always point to that British Balfour Declaration of 1917. The British had never made good.

At war's end the British said they would quit Palestine. Jews poured in. Arabs feared Jewish immigration would swamp them. Besides, they objected to creation of a new Jewish state. But in 1947 the United Nations approved this idea: partition Palestine, letting part of it be a Jewish state, part an Arab state.

On May 14, 1948, the Jews proclaimed the independence of Israel. The next day Egypt, followed by other Arab countries, attacked Israel. The Jews, outnumbered, outfought the Arabs and, by the time an armistice was agreed on, held not only what the U. N. had intended to be Jewish Palestine but most of what had started out to be Arab Palestine.

This armistice, obtained by the U. N., was supposed to be only temporary. The U. N. thought perhaps peace could be agreed on. It hasn't been agreed yet. Scarcely a week has passed since 1949 that some bloody clash has not occurred along the armistice line between Egypt and her four Arab neighbors: Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Egypt.

That armistice line—besides the Arabs' hatred of the Jews and their refusal to recognize Israel as a state—was one of the sorest points. While that line left Israel in pos-

President's Thanksgiving Proclamation Is Issued

WASHINGTON (AP)—The text of President Eisenhower's 1953 Thanksgiving proclamation: The custom of devoting one day each year to national thanksgiving is a wise and ancient one, hallowed by observance in the days before we became a nation, and sanctioned throughout the succeeding generations. It is therefore in that at the fruitful season of the session of most of what had been Arab Palestine, Jordan held a piece bordering on Jerusalem, and Egypt had a part called the Gaza Strip. The U. N. Armistice also called for demilitarized zones.

Early this month fighting broke out between the Egyptians and Israelis in one of those zones — called El Auja — on the frontier between Egypt and Israel.

By itself this would have been had enough. But the fighting began shortly after Egypt reportedly had ordered 80 million dollars worth of arms from Communist Czechoslovakia. It meant Russia was beginning to make solid contact with the Arabs.

The West, but particularly the United States, while helping Israel get on its feet wanted not only to keep the friendship of the Arabs but to keep them away from Russian influence.

'Meet The Team' Night Set For Friday In Mill St. Gym

Tiger Cagers To Scrimmage Watkins Memorial As Courtney Previews Prospects For Season

Circleville High School's basketball hopefuls for the 1955-56 season will be officially introduced Friday evening at the "Meet The Team" night, sponsored by the Booster Club.

The Tiger varsity will take to the hardwoods at 7 p. m. against Watkins Memorial High School from the Pataskala area. The two reserve squads will meet after the varsity cagers scrimmage.

This will be the official preview of coach Red Courtney's cagers who will be out to erase last season's disastrous 2-18 record. CHS's only two wins were a triple overtime thriller against Hillsboro here last Jan. 7 (69-67); and a 58-57 victory at Logan in the final game of the season.

Circleville will have almost all of its cagers returning this season, giving Courtney the advantage of experience. Missing this season will be: Jay Curry, Joe Hill, Jim Callihan and Bill Schneider (who transferred to Westerville before the season was over).

RETURNING lettermen, in alphabetical order, are: Bobby Callihan, 5' 6", senior guard; Ralph Jones, 6', senior forward; Jim McConnell, 6', senior forward; Walt Sieverts, 6' 3 1/2", senior center; Eddie Tomlinson, 5' 11", junior guard; and Bobby Wellington, 5' 8", senior guard.

Rounding out the varsity roster are: Dick Banks, 6', junior forward; Bob Fraser, 5' 11", junior guard; Bill Johnson, 6' 2", sophomore center; Mike Karns, 5' 6", senior guard; Tom Krinn, 5' 10", junior forward; and Don Strawser, 6', senior center. In addition, Courtney has Jim Hoover and Cliff Stewart.

Courtney said he may be able to field more height this season. The Tigers' sad experience last season was that they were so much smaller than opposing teams.

Coach Dick Boyd's reserve team will also show its wares Friday night. Oddly enough, Boyd's starting five has three transfer students: center Jon Parcher, a 6' 4" sophomore, from Ashland; forward Bob Taylor, a sophomore from Paducah, Ky.; and Paul Humphrey, a freshman forward from Columbus.

Rounding out the Kittens' starters are guards Mike Hosler and Fred Garner. Both are sophomores.

IN AN EFFORT to strengthen Circleville's cage picture, a freshman team is being formed for the first time here. Coach Art Thompson will be in charge of the ninth graders. Al Gabriel will continue to coach the junior high team, thus providing a solid "chain" for the future.

One game has been added to the CHS schedule. Wellston will play here on Dec. 23, which had been an open date. Except for the week of Dec. 5, the Tigers will be in action every week until the end of the season on Feb. 24.

Faculty manager is Tom Bennett. Varsity cheerleaders are: Rita Edgington, head; Mary Jo Smith, Marsha Morgan, Ruth Cassidy, Billie Sue Johnson and Joyce Graffis.

CHS opens its schedule on Nov. 29, a scant two weeks away, when they entertain Athens here. Last year, Athens squeaked by with a 55-54 win in a see-saw battle there.

The Tigers' tournament play will be at Groveport Dec. 28-29. Ten of their 18 games will be played at home.

Clarksburg '5' Bury Hapless Deers, 104-41

The Clarksburg Eagles were flying high Tuesday night as they buried the hapless Williamsport Deers, 104-41.

With most of the first team sitting out more than half the game, the fast-breaking Eagles practically burned down their nets to the delight of their home-floor fans.

Every single Eagle player figured in the scoring as the hapless Deers, who also were using reserves to the fullest extent, tried in vain to halt the deluge.

Williamsport had to play the contest without its high scoring forward Gene Stonerock who had his tonsils removed. However, he should be ready for action when league action gets underway again.

CLARKSBURG is undefeated this year having won all four games. The Eagles smothered Atlanta 103-50 early this season.

Williamsport now sports a 1-4 overall record.

The reserve tilt also went to the Eagles as they humiliated the Deers 61-13.

Pirates Lose See-Saw Tilt To St. Mary

In a see-saw game which could well have gone either way, the Pickaway Pirates were nosed out by Lancaster St. Mary Tuesday night, 52-49 at St. Mary.

The Pirates led by one point at the end of the first and third quarters but the Saints won on the long end of the final score.

Dave Smith returned to the Pirate lineup after being out for two weeks but his return wasn't enough to stave off the Pirate defeat. He led the scoring for both teams with 19 points.

Pickaway scored 23 points from the foul circle out of 29 tries. St. Mary netted 10 of 18 attempts.

Broncos Take Low-Scoring Game, 44-24

Mt. Sterling's first game in its new gym Tuesday night was a bit disappointing to the home folks as the Ashville Broncos downed the Mounts, 44-24.

Mt. Sterling played a slow deliberate style of game accounting for the relatively low score.

In the foul shot department, Ashville made good on 14 of 26 attempts while, Mt. Sterling dunked only four of 15 shots.

Curry was high point man for both sides with 15 points. Although scoring only five points, Riegel

'Meet The Team' Night Set For Friday In Mill St. Gym

Tiger Cagers To Scrimmage Watkins Memorial As Courtney Previews Prospects For Season

Circleville High School's basketball hopefuls for the 1955-56 season will be officially introduced Friday evening at the "Meet The Team" night, sponsored by the Booster Club.

The Tiger varsity will take to the hardwoods at 7 p. m. against Watkins Memorial High School from the Pataskala area. The two reserve squads will meet after the varsity cagers scrimmage.

This will be the official preview of coach Red Courtney's cagers who will be out to erase last season's disastrous 2-18 record. CHS's only two wins were: a triple overtime thriller against Hillsboro here last Jan. 7 (69-67); and a 58-57 victory at Logan in the final game of the season.

Circleville will have almost all of its cagers returning this season, giving Courtney the advantage of experience. Missing this season will be: Jay Curry, Joe Hill, Jim Callihan and Bill Schneider (who transferred to Westerville before the season was over).

of Dec. 5, the Tigers will be in action every week until the end of the season on Feb. 24.

Faculty manager is Tom Bennett. Varsity cheerleaders are: Rita Edgington, head; Mary Jo Smith, Marsha Morgan, Ruth Cassidy, Billie Sue Johnson and Joyce Graffis.

CHS opens its schedule on Nov. 29, a scant two weeks away, when they entertain Athens here. Last year, Athens squeaked by with a 55-54 win in a see-saw battle there.

The Tigers' tournament play will be at Groveport Dec. 28-29. Ten of their 18 games will be played at home.

RETURNING lettermen, in alphabetical order, are: Bobby Callihan, 5' 6", senior guard; Ralph Jones, 6', senior forward; Jim McConnell, 6', senior forward; Walt Sieverts, 6' 3 1/2", senior center; Eddie Tomlinson, 5' 11", junior guard; and Bobby Wellington, 5' 8", senior guard.

Rounding out the varsity roster are: Dick Banks, 6', junior forward; Bob Fraser, 5' 11", junior guard; Bill Johnson, 6' 2", sophomore center; Mike Karns, 5' 6", senior guard; Tom Krinn, 5' 10", junior forward; and Don Strawser, 6', senior center. In addition, Courtney has Jim Hoover and Cliff Stewart.

Courtney said he may be able to field more height this season. The Tigers' sad experience, last season was that they were so much smaller than opposing teams.

Coach Dick Boyd's reserve team will also show its wares Friday night. Oddly enough, Boyd's starting five has three transfer students: center Jon Parcher, a 6' 4" sophomore, from Ashland; forward Bob Taylor, a sophomore from Paducah, Ky.; and Paul Humphrey, a freshman forward from Columbus.

Rounding out the Kittens' starters are guards Mike Hosler and Fred Garner. Both are sophomores.

IN AN EFFORT to strengthen Circleville's cage picture, a freshman team is being formed for the first time here. Coach Art Thompson will be in charge of the ninth graders. Al Gabriel will continue to coach the junior high team, thus providing a solid "chain" for the future.

One game has been added to the CHS schedule. Wellston will play here on Dec. 23, which had been an open date. Except for the week

Pirates Lose See-Saw Tilt To St. Mary

In a see-saw game which could well have gone either way, the Pickaway Pirates were nosed out by Lancaster St. Mary Tuesday night, 52-49 at St. Mary.

The Pirates led by one point at the end of the first and third quarters but the Saints were on the long end of the final score.

Dave Smith returned to the Pirate lineup after being out for two weeks but his return wasn't enough to stave off the Pirate defeat. He led the scoring for both teams with 19 points.

Pickaway scored 23 points from the foul circle out of 29 tries. St. Mary netted 10 of 13 attempts.

The prelim also went to the Lancaster Saints 33-21.

Clarksburg '5' Bury Hapless Deers, 104-41

The Clarksburg Eagles were flying high Tuesday night as they buried the hapless Williamsport Deers, 104-41.

With most of the first team sitting out more than half the game, the fast-breaking Eagles practically burned down their nets to the delight of their home-fans.

Every single Eagle player figured in the scoring as the hapless Deers, who also were using reserves to the fullest extent, tried in vain to halt the deluge.

Williamsport had to play the contest without its high scoring forward Gene Stonerock who had his tonsils removed. However, he should be ready for action when league action gets underway again.

CLARKSBURG is undefeated this year having won all four games. The Eagles smothered Atlanta 103-50 early this season. Williamsport now sports a 1-4 overall record.

The reserve tilt also went to the Eagles as they humiliated the Deers 61-13.

Retiring Farm Couple Needs Higher Investment These Days

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Fifty years ago a farm couple could retire and live comfortably on the income from an investment of $25,000. Now it takes between $75,000 and $100,000, according to an extension economist of Ohio State University.

Wallace Barr, who has made a study of farm savings, says the main reasons for this difference are that standards of living are higher and the value of the farm dollar is less.

Barr notes that such savings among farmers are not as fantastic as they first appear. A good 160-acre Ohio farm with a high percentage of cropland might easily be worth from $30,000 to $50,000 or more. Live-stock and equipment on that farm could boost the total another $15,000.

With good management the farm should return five percent interest on the investment. A five percent return on $75,000 would be $3,750 a year, or a three percent return would be $2,250.

Thus, a farmer and his wife might find adequate income for security in their later years from their own farm. Some farmers might retire on an adequate income with less investment through social security benefits. Many Ohio farmers, however, do not have satisfactory investments to maintain a comfortable living in old age, Barr explains.

There are other places to put savings besides a farm. Barr lists these main factors to consider in choosing them:

Rate of return — Interest will vary primarily with the risk involved. Rates of interest on investments vary with the net income of the business.

Risk — Types of investment which involve the greatest risk have chances of making the greatest return as well as the greatest loss. When studying risks the honesty and reliability of the organization entrusted with savings needs to be considered.

Liquidity or convertibility into cash—Some forms of savings can be cashed more readily than others. How quickly savings can be converted into cash should be one guide as to where investments are deposited. A young farmer may need quickly convertible savings more frequently than a long established operator. As he worth increases a larger portion can be less liquid or placed in property titles.

Our hog marketing system lags behind those systems dealing with other farm commodities, an agricultural economist of Ohio State University told those attending a recent meeting of the Illinois Agricultural Association in Chicago.

George F. Henning, professor of agricultural economics, suggested we gear our hog marketing system to the true value of hogs to the packer. In some markets, he said, farmers are receiving a differential for leaner, meat-type hogs.

However, he pointed out, even in these markets there still is no significant difference in the market price of Number 2 and Number 3 hogs. Number 2's are those average finish and Number 3's are fat or over-fat animals. Recognition of the difference in value must be accepted generally and must be put into practice, he said.

Some of the reason for failure to get such a system working, in Henning's opinion, is due to the fact that producers have not universally accepted the idea that they would be better off producing meat-type hogs.

As a consequence, he said, there still is a large volume of fat or over-fat market offerings. Packers buy these animals, and so long as they do, and so long as producers do not sustain any significant discount on them, it is likely such producers will continue to raise them.

Successful hunters are those who take home good meat, according to Robert Davis, extension specialist in wildlife conservation at Ohio State University.

Davis suggests hunters field dress their game immediately upon getting it. Good field dressing consists of removing stomach and intestines and cooling the animal thoroughly before pocketing it.

Failure to clean game promptly invites decomposition, strong flavors and bad odors, the wildlife specialist warns. After completing the dressing at home, game should be stored at least three days in a refrigerator to get the best in flavor and tenderness.

The best cooking method depends on the age of the animal, Davis says. Most small game animals harvested in Ohio are young and can be roasted, broiled or fried. Mature game should be braised, stewed or baked. Cooks may recognize mature pheasants in their longer, curved spurs and mature rabbits by the absence of cartilage in the wrist joint.

Pre-soaking in salt water, or parboiling are unnecessary treatment if game has been properly handled in the field, Davis points out. Adding butter or fat to the cooking process will improve the texture of rabbit or pheasant meat.

End To Draft Of Fathers Hinted As Coming In Offing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A selective service spokesman said today a change in the draft regulations is expected "fairly soon" which will have the effect of deferring most if not all fathers.

He said the anticipated change would provide this order of call for eligible registrants between 18½ and 26 years of age:

1. Delinquents. (Defined as those who for some reasons failed to register or to comply with local board instructions to report for physical examinations.)
2. Volunteers.
3. Nonvolunteers between 18½ and 26 with no children.
4. Men 26 and younger with children.
5. Men over 26.

The spokesman said selective service had no immediate comment on a new call by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) for an immediate blanket deferment of fathers and men over the age of 26.

Bricker also urged in a letter to Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, that men under age 21 be accepted for induction.

"I feel," Bricker's letter said, "that selective service's present restudy of the plight of fathers and older men does not go far enough on the problem of fathers."

plan to present to the Columbus Metropolitan Committee a proposal for a $72 million bond issue, it was reported yesterday.

The money would be used for 10 service department projects now in the planning stage, including expressways, street improvements, a new safety building and airport terminal building.

COLUMBUS (AP)—Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill has ruled that a new formula for distributing state funds to county school boards, al-

The opinion to R. M. Eyman, state superintendent of public instruction, said county boards should anticipate the effect of the change in the law for the last quarter in preparing 1956 budgets.
